Guide Description

AUTHOR NOTE: We've all seen enough clips of those cheesy reality matchmaker shows with clips of mountain vacations with couples in hot tubs, champagne in hand and fresh snow covering the nearby Aspen trees. Hey, it's not just big television network producer magic, it can happen out in Colorado (well, without the fake "Bachelor"-style cat fights and sad pick-up lines). Around Breckenridge and Summit County, vacationers can rekindle or discover love for the first time at deluxe resorts, cozy candle-lit restaurants and one-of-a-kind outdoor adventures

Valdoro Mountain Lodge

DESCRIPTION: Those who like to vacation in style stay at Valdoro. This inviting, 5-floor lodge sees to it that you relax in comfort. The rooms are spacious and inviting and patrons often give high marks to the friendly, helpful staff. The location is also a plus, only a few blocks from Main Street. Free shuttle service provided. © wcities.com

MY NOTE: When couples think of making a romantic escape to the mountains, perhaps they envision one of Jim Carrey's dream sequences from "Dumb and Dumber," where he wines and dines Lauren Holly with a picturesque roaring fire and the Rockies as the beautiful backdrop. Yes, all that lodge quality, minus the silly antics of the movie. Well, that little fantasy can be realized at the Valdoro. Fun fact? While "Dumb & Dumber" is set in Aspen, it was filmed right here in Breckenridge. ote information>

Hearthstone Restaurant

DESCRIPTION: A favorite of locals because of its creative cuisine, the Hearthstone is in a historic home built in 1886. It has a rustic yet elegant interior, with fine mountain views from the upstairs lounge. Start with the house-smoked trout, a chile relleno, or crispy lobster, then choose from fresh seafood such as ginger-crust scallops or ahi tuna. Other choices include the blackberry elk with a garlic-granola crust, Colorado lamb strip loin, and an 8-ounce beef tenderloin with a demi-glacé and Yukon gold potatoes. © Frommer's

DESCRIPTION: The Stephen C. West Ice Arena sports both an indoor and outdoor ice rink. The indoor rink features meeting and changing rooms, seating that can comfortably hold up to 475 people, and a food stand. The arena is home to community programs like The Summit Youth Hockey Association, skating classes, and a hockey league for the public. They also offer party packages. Check website for party packages. Whether you're a fan of figure skating or hockey, this ice arena is the place to be. © wcities.com

MY NOTE: Any couple vacationing in a mountain resort cannot leave without creating one of those sentimental, lovey-dovey ice skating scenes seen in so many movies. In Breck, check out the Stephen C. West Ice Arena which offers affordable indoor and outdoor skating for the public.

OUR LOCAL EXPERT SAYS:
Menu prices range from $7-$28.

DESCRIPTION: In a resort town where it is hard to find restaurants that focus on repeat visitors, recently-renamed Ember does just that. They keep you coming back every time, because all the key elements of a good restaurant seem to just come together. The atmosphere is comfortable, the staff is friendly and knowledgeable, and the food is delicious. What more could you ask for? Well, if it's a stellar wine list, then they've got that too. The use of fresh local ingredients keeps prices reasonable.

Breckenridge Snapshot

Local Info

In the Colorado Rockies lies an old mining town that skiers head to when the world gets blanketed in snow. It's party time on the slopes with the highest chairlift in the world. Welcome to Breckenridge-- a place where having fun is wintertime ritual. There's also a healthy dose of history to be had at the Barney Ford House Museum, the Historic Father Dyer Church and the Summit County Courthouse in this little hamlet located in the south central region of Colorado. The skiing and snowboarding is definitely the main attraction. But here's what makes fun-loving Breck even more special: There's fun to be had even when the sweltering heat of summer has melted all the snow away.

Things to Do in Winter

Breckenridge is a world-class ski destination, so skiing and snowboarding are definitely at the top of the agenda. There are different slopes for skiers of all levels in the four mountains that span the Breckenridge Ski Area. If you don't like the crowds here, you can drive to the Arapahoe Basin Ski Area 12 miles away. You can also go snowmobiling at Breckenridge Snowmobiling Tours and Rentals. At Goodtimes Adventures, you can also add showshoeing and dog sledding to your itinerary. For a truly unique vacation experience, try your hand at ice fishing on Lake Dillon.

Things to Do in Summer

There's more to Breck than winter sports. In the summer, Peak 8 Fun Park with its Super Slide opens. It's the best place for some real excitement and theme park fun. You can also cycle down the 11,059-foot summit by renting a full suspension bike from Breckenridge Sports. Take note, however, that some runs on the cycle trail might actually cause your bike to literally take flight, so if you are a casual cyclist, be sure to pick the right path. You can also try your hand at fly fishing at Breckenridge Outfitters. Other popular activities include hot air balloon rides, white water rafting and trekking.

Shopping and Dining

Historic Main Street is the site of 200 quaint shops where you can buy a variety of items from handmade soaps to genuine Navajo weavings. There are also boutiques and galleries that sell fine art, paintings, accessories, furniture, souvenirs and gifts. Pubs, restaurants and food shops also line this long strip. The Warriors Mark and Baldy Mountain Districts also have great dining options if you want to take your meals in quieter surroundings.

History

Before the gold boom of the west, Breckenridge was the summer hunting quarters of the Ute Indians. In the 19th Century, the promise of gold drew individuals to the mountains of Colorado in order to strike it rich. Among them was General George E. Spencer.

In 1859, Spencer founded the town and originally called it Breckinridge after the current Vice President, John Cabell Breckinridge. Spencer had larger ambitions than to simply flatter the Vice President. His goal was to please the government in order to obtain the first post office in the area. The plan worked and the young town of Breckinridge was given their very own post office.

On the brink of the Civil War, John Cabell Breckinridge sided with the Confederates, much to the dismay of the mostly Union supporting citizens of the mountain town. This caused an adjustment in the name originally decided upon by Spencer. The second "i" was dropped and replaced by an "e" to form the city's current moniker, Breckenridge.

Breckenridge began to grow during the 1800s. Saloons, restaurants, hotels, and other establishments sprang up. With these new businesses, the population grew.

Although Breckenridge soon became the county seat of Summit County, the town was beginning to experience tensions from the Civil War and the decline in mining activity. As a result of these factors, the population decreased.

However, Breckenridge would soon experience another mining boom with the introduction of the large-scale hydraulic placer. This technological advancement allowed miners to remove rocks and sediment with water pressure. The discovery of silver and lead in the mountains of Colorado drove more ambitious individuals to Breckenridge. The town began to grow steadily.

Breckenridge had experienced a substantial mining phase from its earliest days until after the Second World War. Despite the mountains being rich with precious metals, the people of Breckenridge were forced into the Depression along with the rest of the country. These hard times brought about another decline in population resulting in less than a thousand people living in Breckenridge the first half of the 20th Century.

Around 1930, the fate of Breckenridge appeared tragic. The town had lost several important buildings due to fires, abandonment, or demolition for tax purposes. Soon, the mining town that had risen out of the dusty Rockies was no longer represented on the map of the United States.

In the 1960s people found themselves migrating to Breckenridge yet again. Instead of dreaming of dark, dank mines filled with glittering gold, visitors were drawn to the snow-white mountain peaks. This was a result of improved methods of transportation in the country and more specifically to the construction of the Eisenhower tunnel that created a shorter and more accessible commute from Denver to Breckenridge. Where once Breckenridge was a magnet for prospectors, by the 60s it had become a tremendous draw for the recreational set. Its beautiful outdoors in the midst of the Rockies have made

Hotel Insights

Breckenridge is celebrated for its resorts and lodges where winter sports enthusiasts rest their aching bones after a cold day on the slopes. The accommodations listed below provide visitors with a warm, hospitable haven from the outdoors.

Historic District

A stylish and luxurious stay can be found at Valdoro Mountain Lodge. Then there is the Great Divide Lodge, which is located in the Mining District and center of the city. Shops, restaurants, and activities are all a stone's throw away from the comfort of the hotel.

Four Seasons

Marriott's Mountain Valley Lodge offers the option of a studio or villa. The harshness of the elements may leave you feeling tired. For upscale spa treatments, check out the Lodge & Spa at Breckenridge. From their menu of treatments you're sure to find something to make you feel fabulous. Relax away the cold in the spa and later dine on French-American cuisine at their on-site restaurant.

If you're traveling in a group, then check out the hotels offering studios or 2 to 3 bedroom accommodations. Hyatt Main Street Station has everything a mountain resort should including a ski valet service. Village at Breckenridge has three bedroom condominium suites complete with a kitchen to make you feel right at home.

Peak 8 and Peak 9

Grand Timber Lodge has something for almost everyone. Spacious rooms, spas, restaurants, and activities for kids make this lodge the ideal place for families.

If you're after more affordable, low-frills digs yet still clean and friendly, Beaver Run Resort and Breckenridge Mountain Lodge may be just the ticket. Copper Mountain Ski Resort offers a variety of activities within the property itself. This place is just about a one-stop shop when you are in Breckenridge for your ski holiday.

Restaurants Insights

As you stroll among the historic buildings in beautiful Breckenridge, it is easy to see the abundance of dining options: fine dining with panoramic views, steakhouses featuring local specialties and wild game and seafood fresh off the boat will show you that this little town has just as much epicurean appeal as a big city.

Historic District

The Historic District is home to a variety of palatable eateries many of which are set in buildings dating back to the pioneer days. Set in a Victorian home, Hearthstone Restaurant offers guests a taste of old fashioned Rocky Mountain living. For a unique dining experience, The Dredge Boathouse is certainly the place to be. As a floating restaurant in the Blue River, guests can dine with a majestic view, learn some local history and try the delectable steak and seafood options.

Aside from dining options whose emphasis is on the history, places like Rasta Pasta give the town an upbeat, funky vibe. Here, you can groove to some Reggae hits while eating pasta dishes with Jamaican influences. If you're looking for some live music to accompany your meal, Blue River Bistro hosts gigs with performances by local musicians mainly of the blues and jazz sort.

What better way to wind down after a day out on the slopes than by eating a hearty steak? Steakhouses like The Steak & Rib and The Kenosha Steak House offer mouth-watering entrees like "Colorado Lamb Chops" and smoked BBQ. Pizza parlors are also popular dining hotspots as well. Drop in Fatty's Pizzeria for pizzas with freshly-made dough, burgers, and pastas.

On top of it all, the historic area of the town is home to international fare too. Italian cuisine can be found at Taddeo's Ristorante Italiano where the "Penne Gorgonzola," and "Hazelnut Encrusted Lamb" are the thing to order. Giampietro Pasta & Pizzeria serves classic New York Style pizza as well as spaghetti and meatballs. Authentic Thai food, set in a contemporary atmosphere, can be found at My Thai. Drop into Mi Casa Mexican Restaurant for their fresh salsa and happy hour margaritas.

Get your day's energy by eating breakfast at Blue Moose Café. They have popular breakfast items such as pancakes and breakfast burritos. For more contemporary menu selections check out Windy City Pizza, which is located next to the City Market, and is great for families.

Four Seasons

While in the Four Seasons region of Breckenridge, stop by Quandary Grille for not only a great meal, but also for spectacular views of Maggie Pond and Peak 9. The restaurant serves contemporary American style dishes like "Cowboy Steak," "Ruby Red Trout," and much more.

Peak 9

Known for its friendly bunny slopes, Peak 9 also offers some equally friendly dining spots. Coppertop Bar & Cafe serves classic American food and features big screen TVs for guests to watch all the major sports games. Escape the often harsh Peak 9 elements at Spencer's Steaks & Spirits where you can have delicious steak while checking out some live entertainment too.

Warriors Mark and Baldy Mountain

Located on the top of Peak 10, Briar Rose was once a popular spot for miner's to eat. Today, they dish up steak and seafood entrees, pastas, and have options for vegetarians.

Nightlife Insights

Breckenridge's entertainment brims with activities to suit a diversity of tastes. The city offers endless ski slopes and adventure possibilities, with plenty of shops, museums, and bars to offer alternatives.

Breckenridge is ideal for kids and families with programs like The Breckenridge Outdoor Education Center, which provides youth with wilderness excursions and resources like canoes, rafts and climbing walls. At Peak 8 Fun Park, kids can get lost in the "Amaze n' Breckenridge." The Breckenridge Recreation Center features a skate park, numerous bike paths and a kayak park.

At Stephen C. West Ice Arena, visitors can take a break from the rough elements with year-round ice skating. When you're not hitting the slopes, try putting around on the greens at The Breckenridge Golf Club. The course offers 27 holes perfect for professional and amateur golfers alike. The club also features practice greens for those that might need to brush up on their skills.

For a sample of Breckenridge's mining history, take a tour through Country Boy Mine where you can go on an "Underground Mine Adventure" and pan for gold in Eureka Creek. The Dillon region, located north of Breckenridge, is home to the Peninsula Recreation Area where guests can find hiking trails, camping sites, fishing spots, and much more.

If you're looking for adventure, venture just out of Breckenridge to Montezuma to see the Montezuma Ghost Town or what's left of it at least and spectacular views of the Rockies. In the high altitudes of the Climax Ghost Town, enjoy views of the Fremont Pass and the Rockies.

Museums

Breckenridge's Historic District is chock full of museums and well preserved sites dating back to the pioneer days of the 1800s. If you're interested in entomology—bug life, you can check out a collection of Rocky Mountain specimens at The Carter Museum. Get an intimate look into the life of Barney Ford at The Barney Ford House Museum. For a peak into the town's mining past, The Silverthorne Museum houses artifacts and recreates schoolhouses and shops of its time. At The William Harrison Briggie House, guests can see original clothing items, musical instruments, and tapestries from the town's well known ex-mayor, William Briggie. Marvel at the Summit County Courthouse's original oak staircase, high ceilings, beautiful wall-hanging draperies and architecture. Also, the courthouse houses an exhibit of minerals that have been gathered from the region. The Breckenridge Firehouse Museum displays the earliest firefighting tools and photographs.

Cinema, Music and Theater

Film buffs will be pleased with The Speakeasy's choice blends of both major blockbuster and independent films. It's the only cinema in town so guests will get an intimate experience.

The music scene of Breckenridge is well-represented by The Riverwalk Center's array of outdoor concerts and popular live performances. Come experience the sights and sounds of Breckenridge at The Breckenridge Music Festival, where the house can fill up to 2,000 guests. Here, both classical and contemporary music concerts take place from February to August.

The Backstage Theatre brings to the town a variety of live productions like The Sound of Music and Frog Prince.

Shopping

Who would have thought that a place so well known for its outdoor life would also be bursting with an array of shopping possibilities too. Goods is a shop for everything from housewares to clothing. Delight the kids by taking them to Peak-a-boo Toys, which has all the latest gadgets and games. Finley, Jones & Harris Home has everything you can need out of a home furnishing store. At Flying Crane, you can find high-end jewelry and fashion.

Located just outside of Breckenridge, The Outlets at Silverthorne is the ultimate shopper's retreat with over 50 places to get fashions at great prices. At Dillon Factory Stores, just north of Breckenridge, visitors can find major named brands like Coach at a discounted price.

Things to Do Insights

Breckenridge is a young town, but it is nonetheless steeped in history, with a wealth of tour options for every visitor.

Carter Museum The Historic District is the location of the Carter Museum, which celebrates the work of environmentalist Edwin Carter, the Barney Ford House Museum, which chronicles the life of the famed runaway slave, and the Summit County Courthouse. Afterward, you can grab lunch at the nearby Blue Moose Café.

Country Boy Mine The Country Boy Mine offers visitors a glimpse inside the world of mining, the industry on which Breckenridge and many surrounding communities were founded. The Breckenridge Firehouse Museum and the William Harrison Briggie House are also of historical significance. Enjoy dinner at The Dredge Boathouse which serves up hearty meals.

Riverwalk Center Catch a show at the Riverwalk Center or the Backstage Theatre, then check out the handmade pieces at the Portiera Designs Gallery. End the night by Dining with a view at Relish.

Dillon Nature Preserve Have breakfast at the Crown Café, then head out to explore the wilderness at the Dillon Nature Preserve. The nearby Lake Dillon Theatre offers affordable performances. Not far away is the old mining town of Montezuma.

Lake Dillon Just north of Breckenridge is Lake Dillon, which is located beside Frisco Historic Park. You'll find a museum, cabins and a schoolhouse on its grounds. Hike through the nearby Dillon Reservoir Recreation Area or the Peninsula Recreation Area. Enjoy a meal at the Dillon Dam Brewery, a popular spot that serves American classics.

There are many ways to see Breckenridge; hike through its many forests, hop on a snowmobile, or glide through the countryside or explore the inside of an old mine with a knowledgeable guide.
